my husband drives long haul trucking and getting traffic reports over the xm radio helps him with getting thru the big cities safer than trying to find a radio station in an area that he doesn't know. isn't that the most important thing on driving? safety, safety, safety. he can turn it on a channel and leave it there without it fading and having interference so his attention is on the road and the traffic around him and not trying to get a station to come in better. the xm radio is not just for entertainment. it is a tool a truck driver uses every day to help with the safety on the road and he is better prepared for the things that are ahead of him. if you take this tool away from the truck drivers of the nation than you are against the safety of everyone on the road
